

Course Audit

Students who wish to audit or attend a course without seeking credit must be admitted to Minnesota State University Moorhead, register for the course with this form, and pay full tuition and fees. Classes taken for audit are not eligible for financial aid and do not count toward full-time status.

To audit a course, students attend class sessions but are not required to complete assignments or projects, participate in discussions, take examinations, or meet other requirements. An entry of "AU" will be made on a student's permanent academic record.

Students must declare their intent to audit a course by submitting this form signed by the instructor of the course within the first ten class days of the term. Summer session dates vary based on the length of individual sessions.
